Dear The Federal Communications Commission,

I am the single parent of a college freshman and I provide him with a cell phone. I do not want nor can I afford to pay more for my cellular telephone service! PLEASE, reject a flat fee proposal that would change how contributions are made to the Universal Service Fund. I am concerned that this proposal could make my current service unaffordable.

Under the flat fee proposal you are considering, people who make few long distance calls would pay the same as people or businesses that make many calls. In other words, low-volume and primarily residential customers would bear the same universal service fund burden as a high-volume residential or business customers. This is unfair! Further, it smacks of discrimination.

My son uses his wireless phone for safety, security and to stay in touch with me. I don't want him to lose these benefits so that big businesses can pay less than their fair share. Again, I urge you to reject the proposal to move the USF collection system to a flat-fee.

Keep the USF Fair!

Sincerely,

Christy Morris
